ASHFORD AND ST PETER'S

Maternity & Neonatal Voices

Working in partnership to improve maternity & neonatal services

Hello, my name is Mo and I'm the Maternity & Neonatal Partnership (MNVP) Lead at Ashford St Peter's hospital.

I've had all my children at St Peter's; one of whom was brought up to NICU for some treatment shortly after birth.

The MNVP is a national initiative that brings together staff, parents and others to plan, review, improve, and develop maternity and neonatal services in a way that centres the voices of women and families.

The MNVP works in collaboration with the hospital through collect feedback from parents about their experiences of care at Ashford & St Peter's hospital, and working together to make maternity & neonatal services better.

I come to NICU on different days and times every month to listen to parents and collect feedback. You can also email me at asphmnvp@gmail.com to share your feedback.

All NICU parents are invited to be part of the MNVP and there are many ways you can be involved. Email me at asphmnvp@gmail.com to find out more.
